PRESIDENT'S COMMENTS

It's that time again....the Spring Awards Show, when we bring our best to the hanging and cross our fingers in the hope that we are a recipient of an award....any award, be it 1st, 2nd, 3rd or Honorable Mention. Much has been written about how to win at juried shows and much will continue to be written. What we must keep foremost in our minds is that we, as artists, gain by entering a competition. Perhaps we have been motivated by a new look at approaching art, a new inspiration, a new paint brush or those simple little words, "Good luck, Honey".

OAA Spring Awards in April

April 12th, Spring Awards Night
Entry to reception 7:15 to 8 pm!
Hanging April 10th 9-9:30 am

Our Association is comprised of artist's of all levels of ability and I look forward to viewing each and every painting with the wonderment that comes from knowing you have enjoyed participating and have benefited from the experience.

Now inspired, would you help the OAA as Assistant Treasurer, as we are still in need to fill this role, as well as the role of Secretary. Our present Secretary, Diane Henderson will be stepping down in June. The duties will be to take notes at our monthly meetings and provide minutes of the meeting. The Exec meets 7 times a year at the Herongate Cultural service Center for 45 minutes prior to the Speakers meeting. Contact Brian president@ottawaartassoc.ca . OAA meetings are on the 2nd Tues of the month (7:30-9:30pm), Amphitheatre, 3rd Floor, Board Room at the Heron Multi Service Centre, 1480 Heron Rd, Ottawa ON. The Executive meeting starts at 6:30 pm.

Our general meeting in February held a rare practical presentation by an artist. Brian Seed shared his expertise in watercolour techniques on the spot, working on 300 pound cotton fiber paper, mounted so the audience could see clearly as he worked. Not a small feat for the artist who could only view his work upside down. Having no watercolour experience myself, I greatly appreciated observing his brushwork as he covered an area with water, then colour, to create the softness of the sky and the foreground. In contrast with the detailed drawing, this created the illusion of "depth of field", an effect Brian has long been accustomed to in photography. Most convincing effects were obtained from ultramarine blue and alizarin crimson for the sky, burnt umber and quinacridone orange for trees. The tree line seemed to appear naturally behind the drawing, which had been protected with a curious product called "liquid friskit", a liquid cement defending the edges of the drawing as the water and colour spread from the sky and the tree line. Once the painted area had dried, the "friskit" peeled off easily using its companion eraser, keeping the drawing intact. Clean edges were maintained against a naturally flowing movement of colour around the drawing. Beautiful! That was only one of the canvases of the evening and it was a joy to watch all demonstrations. Thank you Brian! By Nicole McGrath

The exhibit will showcase new works on this theme every three months.

Mar 29-May 1/11, reception Apr 7/11 (Thurs 6-9:30pm) The Back-Alley Show, Recent Work by John Jarrett, Strachan Johnston, Olaf Krassnitzky, Karole Marois, Paul Schibli, Karl Schutt, and OAA mbrs Jay Anderson and Pina Manoni-Rennick. They can be quaint or grotty, neat as pin or sketchy and scary. These are Ottawa's back alleys - those surprising service lanes and discretely annexed arteries that harkens back to an era when kids, delivery boys and repair men were politely but firmly instructed to use the rear entrance, please. A place for a quiet puff, a purview of the back yards and back doors of the nation's capital. See how eight Ottawa artists explore and depict the back alleys of our city. Hard on the heels of last year's hugely successful show, "Champlain Lookout," the same group of painters spent the past 52 weeks walking, haunting and exploring Ottawa's alleyways. Their unique portrayals of the urban landscape are every bit as skillful, sensitive and intriguing. Cube Gallery, 1285 Wellington St W, Ottawa ON, 613-728-1750
